EVERGREENS

No Home Grounds are complete without them. They are beautiful in winter as well as summer; in winter they supply the only living green in the landscape; they make a beautiful background for any house, and give it a homelike appearance that is not to be produced by any other class of trees or shrubs. Ultimate success with evergreens depends very largely upon the way the stock is grown and the way it is dug, handled and packed. Fine specimen evergreens do not just happen; the quality has to be grown into them.

SPECIMEN EVERGREENS. As already indicated, Specimen Evergreens are the result of a happy combination of soil conditions, environment and brains. Even then, not all will conform to the required standard. We have trees in stock which we can sell for less money. In comparing prices, remember that height alone cannot by any means establish value. We will take pleasure in showing you these specimen trees in the nursery, because we know they will please the most exacting customer.

Evergreen Trees will be carefully dug with ball of earth about the roots and tightly bound in burlap and will stand transportation and transplanting with no loss. In planting it is not necessary to remove the burlap. Place tree in properly prepared hole, cut burlap in several places, firm earth about ball of roots, and mulch with leaves.

ARBOR VITAE—Thuya

American. Has soft, light green foliage, dense from the ground up; grows rapidly and soon forms a most beautiful hedge, for which purpose it is one of the best evergreens—or for any other purpose.

DECIDUOUS ORNAMENTAL TREES

As ornamental subjects, trees take first place, as they are permanent, easy to cultivate and care for. In all landscaping, the trees are, after the surface of the ground, the most permanent and important element, furnishing masses of foliage which frame and divide and partly constitute the views and landscape pictures, affording shade and shelter, varying the sky-line, screening or blocking out unsightly objects and enhancing the beauty of buildings.

Mere architecture, however imposing, will not make a city street attractive unless softened by the foliage and branches of trees. They shelter the home from excessive heat and dust, add charm to the finest buildings and hide the untidy and unsightly places. There is nothing that adorns city streets more than fine shade trees, especially when planted in long lines of the same variety. The effect is much better when only one kind of a tree is planted on the same street, or, at least on the same block.

Get your neighbors to co-operate, agree upon some suitable tree, then plant trees of uniform size at equal distances apart on the whole block, and you will enhance the value of your property and have a street that lends contentment and refinement to every home. The following list of deciduous trees (those that lose their leaves in Autumn) embraces a selection for all purposes. For street planting, the Norway Maple probably leads in general suitability, with several other varieties of Maples, Elms, Birches, Horse Chestnuts, Tulip Trees, Mountain Ash and others, all favorites; while for lawn and park planting this varied list covers trees of every characteristic in outline and habit, color of foliage and floral diversity.

Ailanthus. (Tree of Heaven.) Thrives in city lots exposed to gas and smoke, and in soils where other trees perish. ..... $1.50-$3.00

A Home Without Trees and Flowers is a Parody on What the Word Implies

This is a most interesting division of ornamental horticulture. For here we find these interesting plants of brilliant foliage and gorgeous bloom, with attractive fruits and multi-colored berries all adapting themselves to divers use in home ornamentation. As a group they prove to be the finishing touches or tints of our picture-planted home grounds. With trees we have made our bolder outlines and shaded the grounds but to this group we come to soften the borders or edges of drives, walks and boundaries; to emphasize some lawn feature; to mellow rigid lines or sharp angles, to fill depressions, to screen objectionable views; to cover slopes or divide areas. From early spring, yes, even late winter they unfold their wondrous bowers of yellow, pink, white and red flowers on backgrounds of purple, yellow, light and dark green foliage. The attractive fruits and berries often adhere after autumn has spread its brilliant colors on the foliage. Proper selection as to height and careful choosing of varieties will insure the accomplishment mentioned and provide a source of indescribable pleasure to the grower.

DECIDUOUS SHRUBS

Almond. Double White and Double Pink.
Each ..... 75c to $1.50

Althea. (Rose of Sharon.) Bloom late in August and September, with a profusion of large and brightly colored flowers much like the tender Hibiscus in form.
Each ..... $ .75

Aralia Pentaphylla. Long, slender, gracefully arching branches and bright green, compound foliage. Makes a small tree in time, especially attractive on rocky slopes. Greenish white flowers in long umbels.
2 feet ..... $ .75

Berberis Thunbergi. Japan Barberry. Inimitably neat and dense in growth, yet quite graceful because of its drooping branches. The yellow flowers are followed by scarlet fruits, persistent through most of the winter; the leaves color to scarlet and gold in autumn. For low hedges, borders of taller shrubs, planting around the bases of buildings, and a dozen other uses, the landscape gardener finds no other shrubs so good.
10 to 12 inches, each ..... 25c; per 100 ..... $12.50
12 to 15 inches, bushy; each ..... .35
15 to 18 inches, bushy; each ..... .50

Villosa. A late-flowering species, blooming a month later than other varieties, with deep pink flowers; extremely free-flowering and effective. Makes a large, splendid specimen.

NAMED VARIETIES OF LILACS

These improved varieties are superior in color and size of flowers. The following collection is of the choicest kinds, and these plants will give immediate results.

Alphonse Lavelle. A splendid double sort, sky blue shading toward center.

Belle de Nancy. Fine panicles of double flowers, beautiful satiny pink in color.

Charles Joly. One of the most striking dark varieties; color deep red; large, double flowers produced in well-shaped trusses.

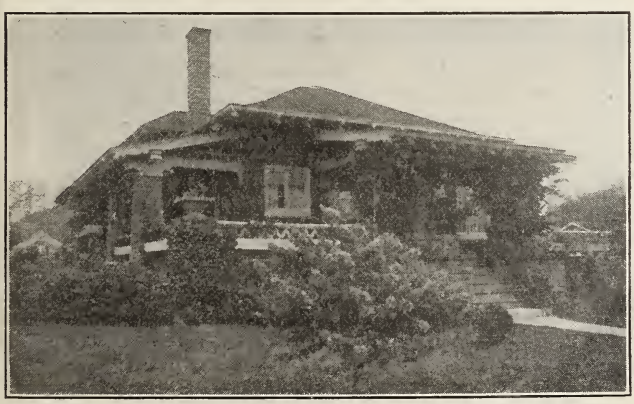
HOME IMPROVEMENT

The beautifying of home grounds is rapidly becoming a habit among a great majority of our people. It is a habit happily encouraged by influences on every hand. By home grounds is meant not alone the spacious surroundings of the suburban mansion, but equally, the less extensive village lot or city back-yard. Possibilities are ever present; even a few square feet given the necessary care will support something that grows into beauty. An unsgihtly heap of stones of promiscuous character and lineage, may be transformed into a garden of plants whose character suits them to such forbidding surroundings. A few helpful suggestions may perhaps show the way to surprising improvement; and the satisfaction thus attained is a reward to be coveted.

We are at all times glad to make suggestions and aid in solving problems of this kind. For plans or where a particular problem is to be considered, inquiries are referred to the

LANDSCAPE DEPARTMENT

This department is in charge of H. E. Krause, a competent landscape designer, who handles all questions that may arise as to the improvement of private estates, city lots, public grounds, parks, cemeteries, etc. Whenever necessary, topographical surveys are made, Grading and Planting Plans furnished, and consultations given on such subjects as tree moving, planting, preparation of soil for special purposes, roads, driveways and walk-building. Charges for such services are as moderate as is consistent with good work and results, and all work entrusted to this department is carefully executed by experienced men under his personal supervision. No other investment in connection with the home will yield as great returns. It has often happened that an expenditure of a few hundred dollars in the outdoor embellishment of the home grounds has resulted in many thousands of increased values to the property.



Charles X. A strong, rapid grower; leaves dark and shining; trusses large and rather loose; color reddish purple; single.

Casimir Perier. The finest double white Lilac yet introduced. The individual flowers, which resemble miniature Tuberoses, as well as the truss, are of immense size, deliciously scented; fiine for cutting.

Frau Bertha Dammann. Single white.

Mme. Lemoinei. Double. White.

Michael Buchner. Double. Pale Lilac.

SPIRAEA

All the Spireas bloom with a riotous extravangance which makes them quite striking. A good collection of them will give flowers all through the season. There is a great variety in their inflorescence, and in the habit of the shrubs, so that there can be no danger of monotony in such a collection. All the species are very hardy, easy to grow in many soils and situations, and will be found useful for specimens, groups, screens, borders, ornamental hedges, etc.

Spirea Anthony Waterer. This beautiful variety produces flowers of a bright crimson and blooms so freely that it may be kept flowering during the summer till late fall by trimming away dead blooms.

Eva Rathke. The most distinct and one of the most attractive varieties; flowers deep crimson red.....$ .75

Rosea Nana Variegata. Dwarf; leaves broadly margined creamy white; flowers pink. This variety is one of the most useful variegated leaved shrubs; and when the doubled beauty of bloom and foliage occurs, it is almost without a peer.
2 feet .....$ .75
3 feet 1.00

HEDGE PLANTS

As a general rule, hedge plants should be planted low and firm, so that the branches from the main stem apparently spring from the ground. In this way a solid hedge is acquired.

If a dense hedge is desired, prune back hard for two or three years, as this encourages growth from the base. Where a wide hedge is required, dig a trench not less than 2 feet wide, and place the plants alternately at the distances noted in parentheses.

English Privet. One of our best hedge plants; almost evergreen.

Visitors Are Always Welcome

During the spring and fall there are short intervals, however, when it is quite impossible for us to devote much time to showing parties about the nursery, as these are the most strenuous shipping periods of the entire year.

In presenting this catalogue, we wish to express our sincere thanks to all those who have patronized us so generously.
